

As the weather cools and you find yourself looking for a winter warmer, try these toasty tipples to thaw the bones from the very slight chill in the air.

Classified

When looking for a festive tittle, mulled wine is a tasty way to inject a bit of spice into your season. Classified are opening a pop-up European-style Christmas Market store at The Landmark that not only pours mulled wine but brings out the Yule in you with an enchanting gingerbread house, fruitcakes, mince pies, as well as Classified's famous cheese platters and Christmas hampers on offer.

November 4 to December 24

Classified Pop-up

The Landmark,
15 Queen's Road Central.

Staunton's Wine Bar + Café

Soho's stalwart corner bar just off the Central Escalator is a cool place to hop off and heat things up. Brewing up Irish Coffees and Hot Toddy's (a delicious blend of whiskey, honey, lemon and cloves for any of you uninitiated), these are hot drinks that sing to the soul. And if they can warm up the Brits who invented them, they are sure to do the job in Hong Kong's fair weather.

Staunton's Wine Bar + Café

10-12 Staunton Street,
SoHo. T 2973 6611

Caffe Habitu

For a non-alcoholic warm-up, these White Chestnut Truffle Lattes are too good to miss. You can even learn the whole backstory behind Hong Kong's homegrown coffee concept at the cupping classes in their new Coffee Academy & Roasting Studio. After a hands-on lesson in latte art, you'll soon be making bauhinia flowers in your coffee foam like a pro. ☺

Caffe Habitu

Across Hong Kong

